Store Locator API

> Warning
> The API described in this page and, by consequence, this documentation, are in beta and may be subject to changes.

This page documents the public API used to create the storelocator. For the authorization mechanism refer to Public APIs Authorization - Querystring api key.

Pages url scheme

The Store Locator API does not make assumptions on the format of the paths on which the storelocator is mounted but assumes that the caller can provide two values to the api: the language in two letters ISO 639-1 and the path of the page relative to the path on which the storelocator is mounted with the exclusion of the language part. For Example, for the url of a store in Parma may be the following.

> https://client.com/it/whatever/path/you/want/italia/emilia-romagna/parma/storeinparma

In this case the language is "it" and the path is "/italia/emilia-romagna/parma/storeinparma". It is not necessary that the language is a node of the path. A more reasonable example may be the following.

> https://client.com/it-en/storelocator/italy/emilia-romagna/parma/storeinparma

In this case the language is "en" and the path is "/italy/emilia-romagna/parma/storeinparma".

The internal links of the storelocator will be given in the following format.

    "language":"it",
    "path":"/italia/emilia-romagna/parma/storeinparma"

> Info
> The pair (language,path) is consistently used both for internal links outputted by our Store Locator API and for internal links received by our Store Locator APIs (for example to identify the data of a specific store in a specific language).

General overview

There is a single API to call for obtaining the data necessary to create the storelocator. The API needs to be called in GET and the URL is > https://{api-url}/storelocator/{language}{path}

With {api-url} being either "test.api.retailtune.com" for the development environment and "api.retailtune.com" for the stable production environment. Since the API is read-only the production environment is advised for its stability and will be directly referred to throught the rest of this page.
Please remember that path contains the initial "/". Here we present a couple of example of calls:

> https://api.retailtune.com/storelocator/it/

Here the language is "it" and the path is "/". This url returns the data necessary to populate the homepage of the storelocator in Italian.

> https://api.retailtune.com/storelocator/it/italia/puglia/bari/demo-boutique-bari

Here the language is "it" and the path is "/italia/puglia/bari/demo-boutique-bari". This url returns the data necessary to populate the concierge page (the store page) of the demo boutique situated in Bari in Italy.
